Section A

(Reading)

Read the following passage and answer the question given that follow: (7)

Devraj was always late for school. The school discipline teacher used to scold him abnormally. She would scold him for hours threatening him with this or that warning. But there was no change in Davraj's habit. One day, Vibhuti the discipline teacher brought him before the principle and asked him to turn Devraj out of school as he was not improving.

The principle asked Vibhuti to leave Devraj alone in his office. After she left, the principle looked up sternly at him to enquire him of the reasons. Frightened by the stern looks of the principle, Devraj started weeping. When Devraj calmed down, he shared the fact with the principle that he had to take his sick mother to the doctor every day before coming to school. He also had to attend the animals as there was no one else to do that duty. Showing sympathy, the principal patted him on his back and asked him to go to his classroom.

12. Write a short paragraph in about 60 words on any One of the following: (4)

The festival I like Most.

- Diwali is an Indian Hindu festival celebrated every year in the month of October or November. It is an auspicious festival celebrated with great enthusiasm all over the country. It is the festival of lights. The celebration starts a few days ahead of the Diwali day with crackers and sweets. Diwali marks the death of an evil man, Ravana, killed by Lord Ram. It is considered as the day when good succeeds the evil. I love Diwali because the day is filled with lights and I love burning crackers and lighting diyas. We wear new clothes early morning after taking oil bath. The day has so many sweets and delicacies prepared at homes. People worship Lord Ganesha and Goddess Lakshmi on this day praying for good wealth, prosperity and fortune. Everyone loves Diwali because it brings happiness to hearts and makes relationships grow closer.

How I helped a blind man cross the road.

- I had a very different experience when I was 17, It is an experience about helping a blind man to cross the street. I still remember that day vividly. That day I stayed back after school to study in the library; it was around 4 o'clock, and I prepared to go back home. As I passed through the school gate, there was a man standing beside the cross – walk; the traffic light was green, he could walk forward, but he didn't. I walked next to him. Standing beside him I could see he was wearing sun glasses and holding a white stick; then I knew this man was blind.
He said " I am virtually deaf and blind; please help me cross the street." I knew I must help him. So I tapped him on the shoulder, and then he put his left hand on my right shoulder and I led him across the street, he bowed in thanks, and started walking up the block, to the next corner, then the next. After this incident, I realized how blessed I am. I should cherish every day and do my best to help people who need help in life.

OR

(ii) What are the means of noise pollution?

- Noise pollution is the transmission of noise in the environment with harmful impact on activities of human beings or wild life. The unwanted sound that is unpleasant, disruptive and loud to earshot is noise. Noise pollution is harmful for the physical as well as mental health. When noise disturbs normal activities of life such as sleep, communication or lessens the quality of life it becomes unwanted. Noise can also have severe effect on our wildlife. Noise pollution was not considered to be a major issue earlier. But due to urbanization the issue of noise pollution is increasing and has now become a major concern. Serious measures need to be taken for the prevention of noise pollution to avoid the adverse effect of it on the lives of human, wildlife and environment.

23. Explain any one of the following stanza with reference to the context: (4)

(i) Good people all, of every sort,

Give unto my song;

And if you find it wondrous short,

It cannot hold you long.

- ‘An Elegy on the Death of a Mad Dog’, although it is announced as an elegy on a dog, is more properly a satire on an elegy. We are presented with a good and pious man, a good Christian, who appears to be a fine example of Christianity and well – liked by the townspeople.

(ii) And flora gave the lotus, ‘rose-red’ dyed,

And ‘lily- white’- the queenliest flower that blows.

- Toru had an ability to excel in her writing at a young age. She mastered “The Lotus” in a Petrarchan style by separating the poem into two divisions, the Octave and the sestet. She uses the rose and lily in the poem to describe the West and the East. The “lily” is the representation of the white race and the “rose” depicting the reddish skin tone of the eastern race, such as her native India. Thus the poem “The Lotus” indicates a fusion between the West and the East.

24. Answer any two of the following two questions in about 30 – 40 words: (5)

(a) Define ‘success? (Risks)

- Success should not be measured in terms of attaining certitude and security in life. On the other hand, it should be measured by our capacity to take risks and dangers to attain knowledge, love, growth and change in our lives.

(b) What makes the poet unhappy? (My Good Right Hand)

- The poet was unhappy as he was passing through bad days. Misfortune and his poverty were pestering him. In his hour of need none came forward to help him. His friends and acquaintances deserted him leaving him alone to suffer in poverty.

(c) What event is strange in the poem? (An Elegy On The Demand Of A Mad Dog)?

- ‘An Elegy on the Death of a Mad Dog’, although it is announced as an elegy on a dog, is more properly a satire on an elegy. Goldsmith depicts the man’s journey to church of a Sunday as a ‘godly race’, which is faintly ridiculous, as is the notion that ‘The naked every day he clad,/ when he put on his clothes.’ When he puts on his clothes he clothes himself, no one else.

25. Answer any one of the following questions in about 80 words: (5)

(i) Draw a character sketch of Bholi. (Bholi)

- Bholi’s real name was Sulekha but she was called Bholi, the simpleton as she was a backward child. She was the fourth daughter of Numberdar Ramlal who had seven children. Bholi remained a backward child due to an injury in her head when she was ten months old,. She was fair and pretty at birth but when she was two years old, she had an attack of smallpox which left deep black marks all over her body. She started speaking only when she turned five but she stammered when she spoke as a result she always mimicked or made fun of by the other children, she was not healthy and strong. She was frightened at first when her father wanted to take her to school. But when she was bathed and given new clothes to wear, she began to believe that she was being taken to a place better than home. Bholi did not know what exactly a school was and what happened there, but when she saw girls like her present there, she was glad. She hoped that one of those girls would become her friends. In the class when the teacher asked her name, she tried to say but the girls laughed at her as she stammered. She cried and kept her head down throughout the class. When the teacher called her name softly after the class was over, she was very touched because no one had ever spoken to her in such a soft voice. the teacher was very encouraging and friendly to her and this made her gain confidence to speak. She started seeing a ray of hope for a new life.

(ii) What lesson does the story 'The Imp and the Peasant's Bread' give?

- The Imp and the Peasant's bread is a story by Leo Tolstoy. In this story, the imp tried to spoil the peasants and played many tricks to cheat the peasant. The author reveals the philosophy of human that he possesses both good and bad in him. However, good – natured a man is, his evil nature will be hidden somewhere in himself. The "impact of alcohol may help to retrieve the devil nature in a man." This is the lesson the story delivers.

26. Answer any one of the following questions in about 30-40 words: (3)

(a) Write about Anil's nature. (The Thief's Story)

- Anil was a kind, simple and easy going young man. He was tall and lean stature and interested in sports like Wrestling. He was not very rich and could not afford to employ Hari as a cook. He had the patience and goodness to not only teach Hari to cook but also to read, write and add numbers. Though he knew that Hari was stealing money from him, he ignored this fact. Anil was a writer who wrote for magazines and made money in fits and starts. He was a very trusting person. Even when he earned a large amount of money, he kept the money under his mattress and under lock and key. He was generous and paid Hari when he got some money. Hari had tried to steal the money from him. He was forgiving and he forgave Hari – the theft and continued to be good to him.

OR

(b) What did the old man say at the end? (Old Man at The Bridge)

- The old man says dejectedly that he "was only taking care of animals." He also says "he has no politics" and that "he is too old to go any further." The old man is a symbol of what happens to the common man when there is a state of war and of the amount of attachment one has to one's chosen family; the attachment can become crippling but without it, our life is meaningless.

27. Answer any one of the following questions in about 20-25 words: (2)

(a) Where did Uttanka live? (Uttanka's Gurudakshina)

- Uttanka lived in a forest hermitage which was made of mud and straw.

(b) Describe the Chowkidar's appearance. (Resolution)

- The Chowkidar was a frail man. He had milk – white beard. He was wearing dhoti – kurta, which was shabby.

28. Write a speech in about 80 words on the “Increasing numbers of road- accidents”. (4)

- Most of the people believe in luck and fate but the problem is that, when something goes wrong, we blame it on the fate, rather than accepting our fault.

According to a credible research, most of the road accidents could be avoided or their effect could be minimized if proper precautions are taken. The issue is that maximum, people are aware of the safety precautions and also the traffic rules and regulations but they consider it cool not to follow them. How this trend started and gained momentum can be a matter of debate but the fact is this problem has taken monstrous proportions and if something is not done urgently, then very soon things will go out of control.

I think no amount of rules and regulations can solve this problem. For this the mentality of the public, especially the youngsters needs to be changed. I think, this could be done by creating awareness among public and the number of deaths caused by road accidents will come down.
